War Intelligence

We have no later news from the East. The Sacramento Union states that the Overland Telegraph was in working order, but the press of private dispatches was so great, on account of the previous interruption of several days, that no general intelligence could be transmitted. It is not likely, however, that anything decisive had occurred since previous reports, or some rumor of it would have reached this coast. In our Monday's paper we hope we shall be able to give our readers tidings of another grand victory. It is also probable, if the steamship Pacific arrives, as expected, that we shall receive the President's Message, so that we can publish it in our next issue.

TO BE PITIED, OR DESPISED.—Some of the Peace Democracy within the range of our vision, looked very sadly yesterday. Their faces were as long as a horse's collar, and the low mutterings of their wrath, when any one spoke of the good news from the East, indicated the treason pent up in their agonized bosoms. Some of them, of course, said the report was all false. "Bragg could not be defeated," "Lee could not be driven," etc., etc. Poor fellows! How they suffer when the country rejoices! How elated have they been, when sorrow and anxiety have filled the hearts of patriots! In all this they have been consistent, and if they will not repent of their cowardly treason, we hope from this time onward, they may constantly have countenances so sad and woe begone as to prove to all who see them, that they are in mourning for their friends who have paid the penalty of their vile infamy at the mouth of loyal cannon, or before the sharp stroke of patriotic bayonets.

UNION CONVENTION IN CALIFORNIA.—The State Central Committee, at a recent session, passed a resolution recommending the propriety of holding the National Convention at Gettysburg—the place where so many brave champions of liberty sacrificed their lives for the Union. The idea is good, but we doubt its practicability. Such a Convention must meet in a city sufficiently large to furnish accommodations for the interested thousands who will be sure to attend its session.

The Committee also authorized the holding of a State Convention in Sacramento, on some day between the 10th and 25th March, to be fixed hereafter.

RICH SPECIMENS.—We saw yesterday at the office of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company some specimens of gold and and silver quartz, from the Owyhee mining region, which far exceed in richness, any ever found in California or Washoe. An assay will be shortly made, and we are greatly mistaken if the result does not startle the San Francisco dealers in feet, more than anything of which they have heard since they commenced operations.

THE MAGRUDER MURDER.—We are informed that persons have gone from Lewiston with Page, one of the party arrested, to search for the bodies of the murdered men. Page promises to lead them to the fatal spot, and says he is willing to pledge his own life as security for the truthfulness of his statements.

SOUTHERN TASTE.—If the question was proposed to you," said Jeff. Davis in his speech at Richmond, "whether you would combine with Hyenas or Yankees, I trust every Virginian would say, give me the Hyenas." To this aspiration, every Yankee says Amen!

THE STEAMER PACIFIC DUE TO-NIGHT.—Messrs. Allen & Lewis, Agents, have received a telegram from San Francisco, stating that the steamer would not sail until Wednesday. The unwonted lateness of her arrival down, being detained two days in the river, and subsequently encountering heavy head winds on the passage, prevented her changing cargo, and being put in readiness for sea, in time to sail on her usual day—the 7th.

A STARTLING REPORT.—A letter published in the Baltimore American, dated Annapolis (Md.,) October 29th, from a responsible correspondent, says:

The flag of truce boat New York arrived at the Naval School wharf this morning, from City Point, with 18 paroled men—eight of the number died on the boat on its way here. They were actually starved to death. Never in the whole course of my life have I seen such a scene as was there presented. They were living skeletons. Every man of them had to be sent to the hospital, and the surgeon's opinion is that more than one third will die, being beyond the reach of nourishment or medicine. I questioned several of them, and all state that their condition has been brought on by the treatment they have received at the hands of rebels. They have been kept without shelter of any kind. To look at these poor men and hear their tales of woe as to how they have been treated, one would not suppose they had fallen into the hands of Southern chivalry, but rather into the hands of savage barbarians destitute of all humanity or feeling.

The California Railroad

We are allowed to publish another letter upon this subject. It states very fairly the considerations which have induced the friends of the project to urge its accomplishment, and though we regret that our friend is somewhat skeptical in regard to the matter, we know that he, like many others who have honest doubts now, will gladly encourage any scheme which may be proved to be feasible, and likely to promote the interests of our State, and to develope its resources.

TO HON. J. W. NESMITH—Dear Sir: From history it appears that Republics have been the chief agents, and the sword the most effective instrument used by the Supreme Ruler to advance the civilization and better the condition of mankind. By the sword of Alexander the Great learning and civilization were planted in the barbarous regions of the East and the bloody conquests of the Romans prepared the way for the spread of the "Religion of Peace."

The Republic of the United States has also a mission to perform, has now entered upon the execution of its appointed purpose, and has gone forth conquering and to conquer. The gates of its temple of Janus now open, like that of the Romans will be closed no more until by the force of its arms the blessings of civil and religious liberty come, dawn as by force upon the unwilling nations. Peace, which has so long blessed us as a nation and nursed us into greatness, has fled affrighted before "grim visaged war," whose terrible voice sounds through the land hoarsely calling us to battle. The locomotive no longer the patient servant of commerce, but as Bellona's chariot rushes puffing and screaming in its fiery energy conveying the warrior and his engines of destruction to the strife, to return freighted with its mangled and gory victims. The storm of war will roll westward, until the hitherto quiet of the Pacific slope shall be broken, the green meadows and golden harvests of its lovely and peaceful valleys trampled under the foot of contending armies, and the slumbering echoes of its eternal hills awakened by the roar of cannon, and the shouts of combatants. Our ocean bearing upon its placid bosom huge iron monsters and patrolled by hostile navies, the swift messengers of commerce will no longer dare to cleave its briny waters, or spread their white wings to its gentle breeze.

An enterprising foe, threatening our country with rapine, and our cities and towns with fire and sword, our thousand miles of coast indented with harbors and road-steads, our country bounded both north and south by the possessions of England and France, (our probable foes), to repel invasions by land and water will require not only a numerous army, but it must have every possible facility for concentration. The mobility required cannot be obtained without the assistance of steam—hence the "military necessity" of uniting the navigable waters of the Sacramento and Columbia by rail.

The travel and commerce now supporting a line of steamers and many sailing vessels being driven from the sea, must find its way inland, hence capitalists will see "money" in the Sacramento and Columbia R. R. and what these great powers (the purse and sword), agree in doing they do, and opposing obstacles moral and physical, whether laws and constitutions, rivers or mountains, are alike overcome or swept aside.

The above is a prosy statement of the heads of the arguments which, delivered in the "phrenzy" of oratory have convinced a majority of your constituents that the Sacramento and Columbia R. R. is a fixed fact. Though it is my misfortune to be skeptical, your high point of view and poetical temperament may enable you to see more force in these arguments than is apparent to my duller sense. It is so difficult for me to clearly comprehend the past or to obtain correct information of the present, that I place little reliance upon the mere predictions of any one about the future. At the out break of the rebellion Mr Seward informed the country that it would be crushed in sixty days—this coming from a great statesman, whose position placed him in possession of facts from which correct conclusions might be drawn was relied upon by the nation to its injury.

Mr Webster said "slavery was forbidden in New Mexico by the decree of God," yet, as it has always existed there, whether Indians, Mexicans, or our own people were masters, we must conclude the Great Expounder was mistaken, or that God has suffered his decree to remain inoperative.

From which I conclude the greatest geniuses are liable to mistakes when they undertake to declare the purposes of the Deity, either present or future. They do not know what God is going to do with the United States—whether it is doomed to destroy, or be destroyed—whether it is to give civil and religious liberty to other nations or lose them itself—we all know the question of its destruction is upon us, its mission of reform, if it has one, is in the remote future.

Very Truly Yours,

JUDGE HOLT ON AFRICAN SOLDIERS.—It will be remembered that Judge Bond of Maryland, a few weeks ago wrote a remarkable letter to the Secretary of War in favor of employing slaves (not merely fugitives) in the army. He took the ground that this was desirable and wise as a military measure, and that in such a State as Maryland it would equalize the burden of raising troops, by making the slaveholding sections bear their full share. Judge Advocate Holt now supports this view in a letter to Mr Stanton. He shows conclusively that whether slaves be regarded as persons or property they are equally liable to military service, and that the question of their employment can only be one of policy. And he thinks that in view of the valor already displayed by negro soldiers their utility is beyond question. He says the prejudice against employing them "is rapidly giving way and never had any foundation in reason or loyalty. It originated with and has been diligently nurtured by those in sympathy with the rebellion, and its utterance at this moment is necessarily in the interests of treason." Judge Holt concludes as follows:

A just compensation of loyal claimants for the service or labor of persons of African descent enlisted in our army would accord with the uniform practice of the Government and with the [illegible] of our institutions. Soldiers of this class, after having periled their lives in defence of the Republic, could not be re-enslaved without a national dishonor revolting and unendurable for all who are themselves worthy to be free. The compensation made, therefore, should be such as entirely to exhaust the interests of claimants so that when soldiers of this class lay down their arms at the close of the war they may at once enter into the enjoyment of the freedom symbolized by the flag which they have followed and defended.

THE LEGAL TENDER QUESTION.—We have already alluded to the decision of the highest Court of the State of New York, and now have the full opinion of the judge. It is too long to publish though the following portion will be of interest to our readers. It was announced by Judge Wright:

We cannot close our eyes to the fact that when the law now alleged in some of its particulars to be unconstitutional, was passed a rebellion and civil war existed of such proportions and magnitude as to threaten the destruction of the National Government. The exigency demanded the prompt and efficient exercise of all the important and vital functions of the government in maintaining and preserving it. Armies were to be raised and supported and navies equipped. It was not only within the express power but the duty of Congress to provide the ways and means for supplying the widely extended financial want, and [illegible] it would have been recreant to the important trusts confided to it had it failed to employ all constitutional measures in the attainment of the end. But money was required to raise and support armies, maintain navies and provide the munitions of war. The money in the treasury and the ordinary revenues of the government were utterly inadequate. The imminent nature of the [illegible] rendered a resort to direct taxation to supply the necessary resources impracticable. The only [illegible] was to resort to the borrowing power. Money was to be obtained to meet the wants of the Government if at all on its credit, and to this power in the emergency Congress resorted. It is conceded that Congress had a perfect right to authorize the issue of Treasury notes as a mode of borrowing money, and that indeed all the provisions of the law of February 1862 are admitted to be constitutional except the clause imparting to the notes the quality of money and making them a legal tender. And why not this if it would aid or conduce to the effectual exercise of the constitutional powers to borrow money, collect the internal revenue or pay the public debts and as a means is not prohibited. The Government must raise money by borrowing. It requires no argument to prove that any means that strengthen the national credit and inspire public confidence in its securities will enable it to borrow more readily and on more advantageous terms, and if so the Government may use them in effecting the object. It may borrow on its bonds or notes bearing interest and payable at a future period, and I know nothing to hinder its borrowing on notes payable on demand without interest and with the qualities of a circulating medium attached to them. Pursuing the first mode the Government is driven to dispose of its securities in the market at rates corresponding with the [illegible] felt at a particular juncture felt in its credit by capitalists. In the latter way, it is emphatically a popular loan—the whole public become lenders. The individual who holds a legal tender note is in effect a lender to the Government to its amount, whilst an additional value is imparted to it as a security from the fact that it is endowed with the properties of money. In either mode of borrowing it is essential to the effectual execution of the power that the security should be made ample, and if, by endowing the Treasury note with the function of money, this end is attained, it is a means that may be resorted to by the Government. It cannot be that in carrying into execution the power to borrow money on the credit of the Government means not forbidden by some provision of the Constitution, which elevate its credit, preserve confidence in its securities and make them equivalent to and perform the function of money in effecting exchanges of property are not within the measure of the legislative authority of Congress. It follows as an inexorable result, that the higher the confidence in the public credit and the more valuable Government securities are made the more promptly and effectually may the borrowing power be exerted. If, as a means of borrowing, notes are issued with qualities to serve the purpose of a currency and fundable at the pleasure of the holder, in my opinion it is nothing more than the Government may do in the exercise of the power. Again, take the power of internal taxation. This embraces the right of levy and collection. As a means for collecting the internal revenue, is it not competent to attach to a note of the Government the characteristic of money? It is an instrument which the Government sees fit to use in the direct execution of a conceded constitutional power. It cannot be any objection that in collecting the public revenue, Congress deems the use of a legal tender note the most eligible mode of accomplishing the object. So also take the power to pay the public debts. May not the Government use a Treasury note, as money, in paying the debts of the nation, and if so, can there be any real objection to Congress declaring such purpose? It is conceded that the Government may pay its debts in what is denominated a paper currency—the million of soldiers and sailors in its service may be paid in legal tender notes without violating the Constitution. Creating such a currency and using it, is the use of means to effect the object.

A NOTE OF ALARM.—The London Army and Navy Gazette of September 5th contains the following:

We are glad to find that our cotemporaries who exulted some time ago in the triumphs of the Florida and Alabama and took much comfort in the law of the Chief Baron of the Exchequer are a little startled by the legitimate result of their doctrines and begin to doubt the reasonableness of our expecting the Federal Government to be content with our neutral [illegible] of building steam rams for the Confederates. We have ever held that such a precedent was about one of the very worst that could be established for Great Britain—that it could be made an engine of incalculable mischief in case of war with the United States or with France. If it ever can be lawful for the subjects of a neutral nation to fit out, equip and man a vessel of war for a belligerent with which the Government of the neutral has no relation whatever, which it only recognizes in exercising belligerent rights—to arm it on their own coast and then to send it out to sea to prey on the commerce of a country with the Government of which their country is not only at peace, but bound by close treaty and engaged in diplomatic relations—hoisting a flag on board which the ship has never had an opportunity of acquiring by a commission [illegible] in the waters of the power for which it is warring—if ever there be legal acts the supremacy of Great Britain at sea will [illegible] again. If such be our law it ought to be changed not in Federal interest, but in our own. It is no sufficient answer to the natural objections made by the aggrieved belligerent that the law of their own country and their past practice justify the act. If Ireland was in a state of rebellion and was so closely blockaded that not a ship could enter her ports, what would our Government do in case the citizen shipbuilders of New York sent out steam frigates with the harp and green flag flying and commenced burning British ships, under the pretence that they were Irish men of war, and argued that such proceedings were just. Justified by law and precedent. We fancy the Government of the United States would hear something on the subject of a decided character.

In an editorial regretting the slowness of the British Government to recognize, by generous encouragement, any evidences of skill on the part of naval and military officers the same papers says:

With respect to the present fearful struggle in America we believe that there are few, whether their sympathies are with the North or South, who do not believe that Charleston must eventually succumb to the batteries of General Gilmore aided by the attacks of the Monitors, conducted by perhaps the ablest artillerist of the day. That Admiral Dahlgren and General Gilmore should be employed on such very important service shows that, whatever other failings the Government of Washington may have it certainly does not possess the fault of passing over extraordinary military talent—in fact, hitherto the difficulty has been to find it, but when found support and merit is as certain to be rewarded as it ever was in France in the palmiest days of the First Empire.

WHAT THE REBELS THINK OF NORTHERN DEMOCRATS.—The last hope of the Rebels rests upon the party which has stolen the name and the party machinery of the democracy. The Augusta (Georgia, rebel) Constitutional incautiously lets out the strength of these expectations in a recent article, from which we quote the following extract:

We confess that we have always built strong hopes on the division and dissatisfaction of the Northern people, the gradual but sure growth of [illegible] peace party and the final outbreak of the insurrectionary elements which exist among the enemy, but which by one means or other have so far been [illegible] checked. But we have now yielded all [illegible] a peace party among the Yankees, and to set at liberty the [illegible] opposition of the anti-republicans was successful [illegible]. Lincoln's armies in the field [illegible]. We still have great expectations from the peace men of the north [illegible] [illegible] of the opposition masses but we are [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] fast and heavy blows from the Confederate [illegible] [illegible] give vitality, system and organization to the peace men and [illegible] terrorized people. Mr. Vallandigham himself as well as the rest [illegible] emphatically [illegible] [illegible] peace [illegible] that if Vicksburg had been held and Lee had thoroughly defeated Meade [illegible] and his Woods and Coxes and Vallandighams and their followers would have [illegible] rampant for peace and [illegible] not a drafted man would ever have worn the United States uniform [illegible] —the very [illegible] or [illegible]—in the City of New York. But Vicksburg fell and [illegible] whole Meade and the [illegible] and [illegible] ready in the ranks.

Judge Hoffman [illegible] in the Vigilance Committee case of Charles P. Duane vs. Capt. Robt H. Pearson, awarding $1100 damages to Duane.

THE MARYLAND ELECTION.—According to later returns from Maryland, J. A. Cresswell (Emancipationist) defeated Jas. W. Crisfield (Opposition) candidate in the First Congressional District, and Harris (Copperhead) defeated Holland (Emancipationist) in the fifth district. The delegation will therefore stand four radical Emancipationists to one Copperhead. That beats the Missouri revolution.

DULL DAY FOR ITEMS.—Yesterday was an unusually dry day for items, notwithstanding the water overhead and mud underfoot through which the pedestrian "after knowledge under difficulties" was compelled to wade. We saw a lady with some packages of "shopping" in her arms undertake to navigate one of the narrow planks which connect the sidewalks of First street, at the crossing of Salmon, and just as she got where the mud most abounded, off slipped her foot on one side, descending into the slimy mushy mud till the ancle must have felt anything but comfortable, in her attempts to regain her footing on the slippery plank, a parcel from her arm fell upon the other side, and was picked up in a horrible plight. The lady exhibited perfect equanimity of temper, not even remarking that she could make a stepping-stone of the back of somebody's head, but we guess she thought it, and would have trod heavy on it with half a chance. Such crossings are nuisances, and property owners should be compelled to abate them, if they will not do so voluntarily. In speaking of the same neighborhood, a gentleman last evening complained of a big pile of dirt, broken bottles, and other unseemly impediments to progress, by contact with which in the dark he barely escaped serious injury. It will not cost the responsible parties any more to remove that rubbish than it will to pay for the boots and doctor's bill they are now liable for. These are samples of such items as drifted around yesterday.

GOLD DUST.—The amount of gold dust per steamer Hunt last night was quite large, considering the lateness of the season and the immense quantities which have been streaming down and out of the country by every avenue that presented in these last months. It is thought by some that the amount received last night would not exceed 350 pounds, but it is more likely that 700 pounds would not reach the figure. Mr West, Wells, Fargo & Co's Express Messenger, brought down 100 pounds. Two passengers made a deposit of a like amount. There were seventy-five passengers all told, and while it would be absurd to attempt to measure the depth of each one's purse, it is safe to say that the awkward and laborious efforts of several when occasion required them to arise from recumbent postures, did not result altogether from laziness. The cumbersome blanket rolls and heavy saddle bags of some were kept in as close companionship as the distended and belted shirt waists of others, and we are confident that returned miners do not burden themselves, to eat, sleep and travel, with worthless weight, even to the limit of physical endurance. It's nothing of less value than gold. W. F. & Co have received this week 465 pounds.

FOUND DROWNED.—The body of a man was yesterday discovered floating in the river near Caples' Bend, about six miles below town. A gentleman residing in the vicinity, upon hearing of the circumstance, repaired to the spot, secured the body with a rope to a bush, and came immediately to town to lay information before Coroner Groomes. The Coroner authorized the bringing of the body to town, for the purpose of holding an inquest, but we could not learn of its arrival up to the time of going to press. The hair was sandy and the coat was represented as resembling felt.

THERE is no other way to cure ill cases but by first purifying the whole system so as to create a healthy circulation.

The first medical men of the age agree with us that no disease of any extent can be cured without acting much medicine as will act directly upon the blood. Why many medical men have failed to cure chronic diseases is because the medicines used have not been such as will act beneficially on the blood.

The many thousands of bottles which have been used by the public and the many gallons and [illegible] supplied to the physicians warrant us in saying that the last two years we have been more successful with our Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup in curing hopeless cases of chronic diseases than have any other remedies in the hands of physicians before the public.

It is now admitted that no combination known to the profession acts so promptly upon diseases as our SCOVILL'S BLOOD AND LIVER SYRUP.

Cold and Fever

NEWARK Ohio June 5 1853

Messrs A L SCOVILL & CO—Gents It is with great pleasure that I inform you of the effects of Dr MOTT'S LIVER PILLS in my family. Four years ago I had the BILIOUS FEVER although under the care of an old school Physician who treated me with Calomel until I was salivated, and my tongue was much swollen and that was the cause of more pain than the disease itself. Finally he gave me up and said that I could not live. I still lingered for six weeks and finally got over that attack with a broken down constitution subject frequently to attacks of Rheumatic Pains in my bones when exposed at least, to cold or dampness. Since that time I have had frequent similar attacks and have by the use of Dr Mott's Vegetable Liver Pills broken up the disease without having the system injured by the use of calomel. I would not be without them on any account. Respectfully

Chronic Diarrhœa Cured by DR BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA, when everything else had failed

WESTFIELD, Ia June 22 1853

Messrs A L SCOVILL & CO—Gents I have been most awfully afflicted for the last three years with the Chronic Diarrhœa in its worst form. I have tried more than a thousand prescriptions from as many physicians and all without the desired effect. My case was said to be hopeless and I believed it myself. I commenced using Dr BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA with but little faith but I followed the directions given and it to my great surprise the [illegible] I had [illegible] days from the date of this certificate since I commenced using Baker's Panacea and I am nearly as well as ever. I am confident one more to twenty five cent bottle will entirely cure me. Please accept and use this certificate as you see proper inasmuch as I owe my life to the inventor of this invaluable Panacea.

A Double Divorce

In one of the townships in this county, a little north of Bucyrus Ohio dwelt a well to do widower, about fifty, with an only son of twenty two or three Mr had been a widower for many years and become weary of that mode of living, he accordingly determined to marry again The determination once formed, the next thing was to find the woman necessary which in this country is not at all difficult Fortunately for him a widow lady resided near him who had a daughter possessing all the requirements She was a beautiful girl of twenty years accomplished and sprightly—just the one he wanted To be sure she was rather young but Mr was young looking also Sometimes his mind would wander to the mother who was quite as handsome as the daughter and almost as young in appearance, but he had made up his mind to marry the daughter and he set about it with a will He did not mention his determination to his son, fearing that the idea of marrying one so much younger than himself might expose him to his ridicule

In the meantime his son had become desperately enamored of the widow, and had likewise determined upon marrying her He did not communicate the fact to his father for the same reason that actuated the old gentleman, for fear of exciting ridicule by marrying a woman so much older than himself They both commenced calling at the house of the widow and frequently met each other there This circumstance annoyed them both immensely The old gentleman thought very naturally that the young man was there for the young lady and the young gentleman as naturally supposed that the old one was there for the widow

As the matter progressed, the meeting of the father and son at that place became frequent and the more often it occurred, the more intolerable it became Finally Mr —— determined to speak to his son on the all important subject

"Charles" said he, "I have determined, after much consideration to marry and thought it but right and proper to make you acquainted with the determination "

"Very good," replied Charles, "I consider it very proper that you should do so. And, speaking of marrying I have concluded to marry myself"

"I approve of the idea," returned the old gentleman you are of suitable age to settle down May I ask the name of your intended?"

"Mrs ," exclaimed Charles bracing up and assuming a defiant look

"Whew!" whistled the old gentleman "fine woman, Charles, but isn't she a trifle too far advanced in years?"

"I think not," said Charles, "but who have you decided upon?"

"Why Charles it is a very curious circumstance but I had determined to marry her daughter"

"Daughter!" exclaimed Charles, "why, you are at least twice as old as she is, though I don't object"

The matter was thus happily settled and in the course of a few weeks it was satisfactorily arranged with the widow and daughter and the parties were married

Very soon after the marriage was consummated, they all discovered that they had made a grand mistake The son found that the widow was altogether too motherly for the wife of a young man of twenty three, and the old gentleman found that a young lady of twenty was too volatile for a sober minded man of fifty Disagreements followed then neglect, and finally the thousand little quarrels, and snubbings, and bickerings, simpering down into a grand fight, which was kept up with slight variations, for about three months

Finally they agreed permanently to disagree, and availing themselves of the ease with which divorces are obtained in Indiana, the whole four removed to Indiana where in due time the divorces were obtained

The four came home as they went, together the son taking the daughter under his special charge, and the father doing the agreeable to the widow Long before they had arrived at Bucyrus, they had arranged matters on an entirely different basis—the father and the widow made up a match, and the son and daughter ditto The re marrying was performed immediately on their arrival at Bucyrus Up to date they all appeared well satisfied with each other, and it is to be hoped that they will long continue so

Married Men Shouldn't Frequent Billiard Rooms—A warning to married men who are in the habit of passing their time in billiard saloons when they should be quietly at home with the mother of their children, is found in the following case given in a late number of the Detroit Tribune

Last night a laughable incident occurred, which is suggestive of the strong mind of women A gentleman had often indulged in playing billiards, but his better half determined to stop him Last night the woman followed her liege lord into a saloon on Gratiot street, where he was engaged in his favorite pastime She suggested that he had better desist and go home—husband couldn't see it in that light—wife was inexorable and demanded acquiescence to her bidding Pater familias refused peremptorily to comply with her wishes until the game was ended Wife wouldn't wait, and "pocketing" one of the balls started home with it Husband thought that rather cool, and went home too That's what we call a strong minded woman"

Gaining Strength—We believe we have "got hold" of an original anecdote that was never printed before A student in one of our State colleges was charged by the faculty with having had a barrel of ale deposited in his room contrary of course, to rule and usage He received a summons to appear before the President who said

"Sir, I am informed that you have a barrel of ale in your room"

"Yes sir"

"Well, what explanation can you make?"

"Why, the fact is sir my physician advised me to try a little ale each day, as a tonic and not wishing to stop at the various places where this beverage is retailed, I concluded to have a barrel taken to my room

"Indeed! And have you derived any benefit from it?"

"Ah! yes, sir When the barrel was first taken to my room two weeks since I could scarcely lift it Now I can carry it with the greatest ease"

The Irrepressible Parson—A pretty sinner may chance to be more attractive than an ugly saint, and parsons sometimes find it out

A good story is told of a Yankee divine of an advanced age who married for a second wife, a damsel young and handsome When the elders of the church came to him to inquire if the lady was a suitable person to make a useful figure as a parson's wife he answered that he didn't think she was "But" added the irrepressible parson "though I don't pretend she is a saint she is a very pretty little sinner, and I love her" And the twain became one flesh

A witness before the police court gave the following evidence Sal S [illegible] ice and water and some stuff squirted into it from a concern—don't know whether it is intoxicating or not—makes the feet lift easier

Little Johnny was the pride and pet of his parents—a bright blue eyed six years old His father one morning after reading a chapter in the Bible asked what a famine was His quick reply was "A cob without any corn on it"

A clergyman was once asked whether the members of his church were united He replied they were perfectly united—[illegible]
